Please do not complete the Proposed Final Judgement without taking into consideration Microsoft's historic abusive practices of intentional incompatibilities and specifically prohibiting them. Please also consider very severe consequences for future abuses of this nature.

You are probably looking at this as a big long project that you have nearly finished. Wouldn't you rather look back upon this project knowing you have actually done something to help the problem? Don't just let it run its course. I strongly urge you to look at it as a way that one company can put another company out of buisness. Or, look at it the way I do, as a programmer, as one company trying to put me out of a job.

Thank you.
